

Construction update

Last week we started the first of five concrete floor pours for building “one”. This took place on Tuesday and went very well. The next concrete pour will take place this week on Thursday 10 May. Concrete trucks will again be coming through the main carpark from 5am on this day.

Concrete trucks will also be coming onto campus most days this week to deliver concrete for the concrete columns. Most of these deliveries will occur between 2pm-3pm, starting today.

We are expecting the next delivery of pre-cast panels tomorrow, 8 May. This will not cause any disruption to staff or students, as the truck will be coming through the main building site entrance for this delivery.

Today a temporary access road for the onsite crane is going to be constructed. Please see below a map of where this will be and details of its movements. Please do keep an eye out and be aware of this crane.

If you have any questions regarding the concrete deliveries or the temporary road for crane access, please contact Kelvin Irvine on Extn 3921.
